Design Professionals Defense & Counseling

Our focus on architects, engineers, landscape architects, and the construction industry began when we merged with Natkin Weisbach Higginbotham – a law firm devoted exclusively to design professionals. Today, we represent some of the world's largest international architecture and design firms as well as solo practitioners. Some of our lawyers trained as architects and engineers. We don't waste time learning about your work. We already know how buildings are designed and built. We also know the unique legal issues that arise in construction defect litigation as well as the business and transactional challenges our design professional clients face.
